The election's impact on our industry's economics

Axiom Software signals to the electronic part distributors its commitment to do more with the new release of EPDS

Axiom Software knows to do more with the new release of EPDS, announced recently. Its highly acclaimed EPDS software is long and rich, changing its look and user interface to keep up with the times. Yagoda, president of Axiom Software, explained, "Today, for our clients and us to compete in the marketplace, good is not good enough. You need to do more."

"In addition to offering electronic parts distribution and having the most flexible, scalable and easiest to learn and use Windows based multi-tenant software solution, we are committed to doing more," said Yagoda. "Even more at Axiom Software is committed to listening more carefully, being more responsive to questions and requirements. In a nutshell, to do more."

Axiom Software's latest EPDS release offers the following additional features:

Counter Sales --

EPDS now provides the counter sales or on-the-counter operation. In one add, customer orders you will be able to enter an order and print the invoice to complete the order. This process operates seamlessly within the context of EPDS, updating all relevant information including inventory, financial, and commission information. The new function is easy to use and works with barcode systems. Customers who have terms to pay and work on company's terms to pay and work on company's terms to pay cash, check or credit card. Within the program, walk-in customers can easily be setup without the need for elaborate equipment. Automated Lot Control --

With automated lot control, EPDS assigns an internal lot number to each receipt. This lot number tracks and shipping the system can track and trace the movement of each lot of parts. This feature also enables you to assign the cost of parts to a sales order based on the lot cost instead of average cost.

Bin Stacking --

This feature allows you to manage the inventory of your customer. Using a handheld barcode device, your representative takes to your customer's location and record item replacement information. This information is then downloaded in EPDS, which automatically creates sales orders for the items that require replacement.
